Craig,

Hey there remember that small web site project that we talked about a month or two ago? Well it has jumped back on the table and I'm wondering what your availability is?

Basically this will be taking data from a database (TBD) and doing a simple web site to display it graphically. The requirement details haven't been worked out yet but I'm guessing the page will have the following on it:

1. Control to pick the data set to work with (all from the database)
2. A table showing the data in tabular form
3. A chart showing the data graphically

Two questions here – A> Are you available in the near term? B> Is this something you are interested in?

I'll be working on a Qt application that feeds data into the database from a variety of data sources, and could also do some of the database setup work. I'm hoping you can handle the web stuff in parallel.

Thanks,
Lloyd Moore,
President
